

Astrid Ley studied Architecture & Urban Design at RWTH Aachen . worked at Agenda Transfer Bonn, Project Manager, publishing & consulting about the LA21 processes . 2000 first ASA student with Simon Wunder in CT, establishing a Data-base of NGOs working in the broader field of sustainability . 2001 “21-household-project”, transferring it to SA . since 2003 at Habitat Unit at Berlin University of Technology with focus on housing & urban development the Global South . 2006 PhD (field-studies): “Interfaces between local government & civil society organizations in the field of housing” . 2010 Postdoc Position at Habitat Unit & short term Lecturer at WITS (University of Witwatersrand Johannesburg) . “My colleague Dumisa gave me the advice: Don’t look where people tell you to look. Look freely and make up your own mind. – The partnership needs to have many pillars and it has tremendously grown since the beginning.”

pillars touch of madness ubuntu people laughter distance love sharing inspiring